Statistics Canada releases first results of Canada's Core Public Infrastructure Survey

Ottawa, August 24, 2018

Today, Statistics Canada published the first results of Canada's Core Public Infrastructure Survey in The Daily. Sponsored by Infrastructure Canada and conducted with Statistics Canada's world-class expertise in data management, the survey will provide trusted and reliable data to support governments and policy makers in monitoring the condition of Canada's core public infrastructure, improving their management and lifespan, and developing future infrastructure projects.

Building on the first release, statistical information on national infrastructure assets will be released throughout the fall of 2018 and will provide baselines for comparing assets over time. The data will examine the inventory, condition, performance and asset management strategy of nine core public infrastructure assets: roads; bridges and tunnels; potable water; waste water; storm water; public transit; solid waste; culture, recreation and sports facilities; and public social and affordable housing.

Statistics Canada is working with Infrastructure Canada to explore the possibility of producing this survey on a recurring basis to develop a broader overview of Canada's public infrastructures over time.

Proposed Realignment of Conservation Districts-UPDATE

The Province of Manitoba is proceeding with plans to realign the boundaries of conservation districts to watershed boundaries. Fourteen meetings have been scheduled with municipalities and districts to continue to plan for the transition. Four of these meetings have been held, while the remaining 10 meetings are scheduled for September and early October. To attend these meetings, please RSVP to watershedconsult@gov.mb.ca. If you are unable to attend, comments/feedback can still be submitted using the email address.
