ROAD SAFETY for flagpersons and road construction workers

Flagpersons, their employers and drivers can all help ensure the safety of flagpersons and other road construction workers.

The Highway Traffic Act requires drivers to watch for and obey directions given by flagpersons. The Workplace Safety and Health Regulation outlines responsibilities for employers and workers.

Employer responsibilities

Employers are required to take all necessary precautions to ensure the safety, health and welfare of workers.

Employers must

- ensure flagpersons are certified by a recognized organization
- ensure flagpersons wear and use all required Personal Protective Equipment (PPE), including:
 - Employer-provided: CSA Class 3 Level 2, high-visibility apparel in fluorescent yellow green, protective headwear in a fluorescent colour (equipped with retro-reflective tape during hours of darkness), a STOP/SLOW paddle with reflective surfaces
 - CSA approved footwear
- ensure all workers and supervisors are aware of hazards in the workplace
- ensure workers and supervisors are trained in, and follow, safe work procedures and necessary precautions
- provide an effective means of communication with other flagpersons when visibility is obstructed
- provide workers with competent supervision
